Bürostner Delfin is back, this time round as a campervan based on a Renault Master

With the Delfin, Bürostner is launching its first campervan based on the Renault Master and is therefore extending its campervan portfolio for the third time within only twelve months. With the "Limited Edition" features as a standard, it already offers numerous home comforts in the mid-range price segment

Düsseldorf. The name Delfin is closely associated with Bürostner's product history. This time round, the manufacturer, based in Kehl, Germany, chose this name for the new, first Renault Master-based Bürostner campervan, presented just in time for the new season. The base vehicle for the Delfin C 621 is a manual 135Bhp Renault Master 2.3 dCi (optional alternatives: 150Bhp and manual or automatic transmission) in a choice of three exterior colours. It will complete the large Bürostner family of mid-price range compact vehicles.

The Delfin's habitation reflects the "wohnfühlen" home away from home feel that is typical for Bürostner: Well-balanced interior design, intelligent use of space and, above all, an ergonomic layout. In addition, the new Delfin always comes with the extensive "Limited Edition" features. In the exterior area, these include 16" alloy wheels, aluminium window frames, a sun awning and a spoiler protection guard, for example. In the interior, the "Limited Edition" features upgrade the vehicle with pilot seats covered in the same fabric as the upholstery in the habitation, pleated blackout blinds in the cab and a special lighting concept, for example. A multimedia system with a rear-view camera and other comfort characteristics are always included. The furniture comes in the light, contemporary furniture design and finish Casa Pino.

Ergonomic living

The dinette's functionality is well thought out. The table is space-saving and foldable, making it comfortable to get in and sit down. Thanks to the standard swivel function, the tabletop can be extended. Optionally, customers can order the mid-vehicle dinette designed in such a way that it easily converts into an additional berth. Ergonomic upholstery, an Isofix child seat anchor point and additional seat belts for two people complete this habitation solution.

Campervan single bed solution

Customers have a choice: They either use the full single beds (190x71/70), or they convert them into a double bed (190x178cm) with the aid of the slidable slatted base. The large storage space underneath the bed can still be used completely after the bed has been converted, thanks to a special support mechanism. A gas bottle box that holds two 5kg bottles is also located under the bed.

Kitchen

How to integrate a real kitchen despite the limited space – Bürstner has solved this problem in the new compact Delfin. It is equipped with a 69-litre compressor refrigerator with double-hinged doors for optimum access, also from the outside. The kitchen is completed by a two-burner hob, a sink with an integrated single lever mixer tap and a glass cover, and soft-close drawers.

A real bathroom

The Delfin campervan has a large and wide washroom unit with double concertina doors. It is also equipped with a shower curtain and a pull-out handset. The integrated rooflight ensures optimum ventilation. Clothes can be hung up on the clothes rail, a standard feature. The bathroom cabinets are ergonomically positioned and easy to reach.

"The Delfin is part of our history. It has a lot to do with living comfort and the home away from home feel whilst you're on the road. In the new Delfin campervan, we have successfully realised our high living comfort standards in a compact space," says product manager Zoran Župan.

In Germany, the Bürstner Delfin will be available from specialist retailers from the 2023 season onwards.
